HOW TO START A TEAM

- Requires a minimum of 3 members in either middle school (grades 4-8) or upper school (grades 9-12) and a coach.
- Each team must have access to an equine facility whether in a private or public school or at a local barn.
- Coaches and facilities must provide proof of insurance and all members must submit membership applications and annual dues.

WESTERN

For hundreds of years, western riding has been synonymous with ranch work. Movements necessary to work cattle can be seen in reining patterns used in competitions today where a horse demonstrates changes of speed with the slightest touch from the rider and the ability to stop and turn quickly with ease. Western horsemanship provides a rider with a strong foundation that will support seamless communication with the horse as the combination executes the walk, jog or lope on the rail and maneuvers in individual pattern work. All Western classes are done with zero warm-up time allotted to the rider.

Western Classes Offered – Horsemanship and Reining

- 4 Ability Levels for Horsemanship in Middle and Upper School: Beginner, Novice, Intermediate and Open.
- Horsemanship classes are primarily rail classes with possible patterns for upper levels.
- 3 Ability Levels for Reining: Novice (Prep), Intermediate and Open.
- Reining classes use standard NRHA or modified ranch-type patterns for lower levels.
- ASTM/SEI helmets are mandatory for Beginner level Western riders in both Middle and Upper School.

DRESSAGE

Derived from the French word for training, Dressage fulfills its definition as youth-riders work hard to perform classic riding maneuvers developed on the ancient Greek battlefields. Be it equitation or test, riders are expected to guide their horses, from memory, through a series of predetermined movements in a rhythmic fashion designated by on-course letter cues. As in the Olympics, Dressage has become the fastest growing IEA equestrian offering. Harmony between the rider and horse are the goal in producing a beautiful partnership.

Dressage Classes offered: Dressage Test and Dressage Seat Equitation (DSE)

- 3 Ability Levels for Dressage Test: Novice, Intermediate and Open.
- Dressage Test classes utilize tests specifically designed for this unique type of competition.
- 4 Ability Levels for DSE in Middle and Upper School: Beginner, Novice, Intermediate and Open.
- DSE classes are primarily on the rail with possible tests for upper levels.
- ASTM/SEI helmets are mandatory for all Dressage riders.

HUNT SEAT

Gliding through the air over obstacles on a 1,200 pound mount is quite the sight and, for a rider, a significant accomplishment! Hunt Seat is the largest discipline of the IEA, and competitions offer over-fences opportunities at every event. With a history based in foxhunting, modern day hunt seat riding has adapted to a forward seat style to allow the rider to easily stay in balance with the horse on the flat or over a course of fences. In equitation, a rider’s position, ability to clearly communicate with the horse and overall performance are being judged. Each ride is performed on an unknown mount determined by a draw-based format. Whether showing over fences or on the rail, riders have lots of fun.

Hunt Seat Classes Offered – Equitation on the Flat and Over Fences

- 4 Ability Levels for Flat Classes in Middle and Upper School: Beginner, Novice, Intermediate, Open.
- Flat classes may include patterns for upper levels.
- 3 Ability Levels for Over Fences: Novice, Intermediate, Open.
- Over fences classes include cross-rails, 2’ and 2’6” jumps.
- ASTM/SEI helmets are mandatory for all Hunt Seat riders.
